A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114.

Applicant's submission filed on 12/3/08 has been entered.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 20 and 40-45 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Elschner, '279, of record.

The previous rejection still applies. Elschner discloses metallic (TiO₂, Al₂O₃, etc.) nanoparticles dispersed in a conductive polymer (buffer) wherein the conductivity of the buffer appears to be less than about 1X10⁻³ S/cm because there is lower current (0.5 mA) than without the nanoparticles. See column 8 lines 15-25. Until applicant unequivocally proves the "buffer" intermediate layer of Elschner does not meet the claimed resistivity (less than about ...) the rejection will be maintained.

New claims are likewise not considered patentable because the nanoparticle inclusion in Elschner reduces the conductivity of the buffer while simultaneously maintaining the brightness.

Claim 45 is rejected as such salt is considered an obvious substitute buffer (intermediate layer) for Elschner because applicant has disclosed such material is well known conductive polymer material and there appear no unexpected results over other common conductive polymers as disclosed in Elschner and applicant's prior art admissions.

Applicant's arguments filed 12/3/08 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. There is no proof the buffer layers of Elschner do not meet the claimed resistivity. Mere argument is neither proof nor persuasive absent concrete evidence.

Claims 20 and 40-45 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Lamansky 7,166,010.

Lamansky discloses a buffer layer of conductive polymer with metallic oxide or other nanoparticles. The buffer layers appear to meet the conductivity magnitude of applicant's claims, inherently. See column 23. In regard to claim 45 the claimed conductive polymer is well known in the art and would be considered an obvious substitute material for the discloses conductive polymers with nanoparticles of Lamansky, absent unexpected results.

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 20 and 40-45 are rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 13-38 of U.S. Patent No. 7,317,047. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because they are drawn to similar "buffer" polymer material with nanoparticles, and any differences are minor and would have been obvious to one of skill.
